1. In git, the repository on your device is known as a Remote.   1 / 1 punto

- ◯ True
- ⦿ False

> ✓ Correcto
> Correct! Remotes are repositories on other devices such as servers.
> The repository on your device is known as the Local.

2. In git, what is the operation used to initially download a repository?   1 / 1 punto

- ⦿ clone
- ◯ push
- ◯ pull

> ✓ Correcto
> Correct! The git clone operation is used to download a repository.

3. The staged area is used to prepare all your files and changes for committing.   1 / 1 punto

- ⦿ True
- ◯ False

> ✓ Correcto
> Correct! Files and changes are added to the staged area using the git > add command.

4. Once a file is committed using the git commit operation, it is available on all   1 / 1 punto remote repositories.

- ◯ True
- ⦿ False

> ✓ Correcto

5. What of the following commands allow you to inspect your current changes before committing?

1 / 1 punto

○ git log

○ git add

◉ git diff

✓ Correcto
Correct! git diff is used to inspect changes.

6. Forking allows you to contribute to another person or organisation's repository by creating your own copy of the repository.

1 / 1 punto

◉ True

○ False

✓ Correcto
Correct! Forking is a common practice in open-source projects allowing for contributions from different developers.